Product Description:

The automotive cylinder head has been meticulously dissected, maintaining every single component in its original state to present a thorough exhibition of the assembly's internal and external structure. By carefully deconstructing the parts and employing a variety of colors for the different cross-sections, the mechanical organization of both the internal and external segments, as well as their interconnections, are vividly highlighted. The equipment base frame, outfitted with anti-vibration rubber pads, is crafted from 1.5mm cold-rolled steel through stamping techniques, and subsequently undergoes surface treatment through a spray coating process. The anti-vibration rubber pads are firmly affixed to the base frame using M6*4 screws.
